

I am Alireza Farahbakhsh from Iran. I am an assistant professor at, and a member of the board of education, of the University of Guilan, Iran. I received my Ph D in English Literature from the University of Sussex, England, in 2004. I have published numerous translated articles in domestic journals as well as several books on English language and literature including A Handbook of Critical Approaches (translation, 2008), Aristotle's Posterior Analytics (translation, 2008), British Drama for Students of English Literature (2008), A Short History of Literary Criticism: Plato to Derrida (2006), Passage Through Life (two volumes, translation, 2006), and Robinson Crusoe (translation, 1995). I have also supervised quite a few successful M. A. and Ph D dissertations.