

Keith Hanley is Professor of English Literature at Lancaster University. He is the Principal Investigator on the AHRC-funded Project, John Ruskin and the Cultural Tour, and, with David Thomas (until recently with Greg Kucich), he co-edits the interdisciplinary journal, Nineteenth Century Contexts for Routledge. With Greg Kucich he recently edited the collection, 19th Worlds: Global Formations Past and Present. He has written widely on British Romanticism, especially Wordsworth, including Wordsworth: A Poet's History (2001) and on Ruskin, including John Ruskin's Romantic Tours, 1837-38 (2006). With John Walton he is currently writing Ruskin and Cultural Tourism for Channel View.