

Christine Krueger is the president of Interdisciplinary Nineteenth Century Studies and is director of the University Core of Common Studies and Associate Professor of English at Marquette University. Her paper is based on research for a biography of the Victorian historian Mary Anne Everett Green.