

You're invited to help create a better Don...

The river Don is a complex network of watercourses navigating across the majority of South Yorkshire. Some parts are in good condition, yet other parts are heavily impacted upon and don't meet modern environmental standards.

Over recent years improvements have been made, but there's much more we need to do.

Since October 2011, the Don Network, a voluntary collaboration of organisations and individuals with a shared interest in the Don, has been meeting to plan the river's future. Together, we are developing an understanding of what problems exist in the catchment; how they should be tackled and how to work together to get the best for our rivers and the land associated with them.

To celebrate our progress, and broaden involvement, we're holding an open evening. If you've got an interest in the river and want to find out more about the Don Network and how you can help us in our plans for the future, why not join us?
