Graduate Prospects
The Times and Sunday Times Good University Guide 2020

Our approach to the study of cinema is underpinned by film theory to give you a deeper appreciation of the aesthetic and intellectual complexity of cinema, and a keener understanding of the ways in which films shape our identities and experience.

You will study cinema history and the social significance of films and will develop a detailed understanding of the techniques of film production. While Film Studies is primarily an academic programme, you will have the opportunity to make your own digital film in all three years of the course, and receive professional training in the use of editing, sound-recording, and camera equipment.

Your degree recognises cinema’s role as a major cultural form and investigates film through a variety of approaches. You’ll examine cinema’s aesthetic, social and political importance in the context of an increasingly visual and media-orientated culture, while also investigating the intersections between contemporary art, theatre, dance, music, sound and film. It is possible to choose from a wide array of specialist film modules (from ‘Silent Cinema’ and ‘Women Filmmakers’ to ‘Comic Book Films’ and ‘Documentary Practice’), and you may combine Film Studies with another degree subject, including Theatre, Fine Art, English Literature, Creative Writing, Media and Cultural Studies, Sociology, and more.

We have excellent technical resources, including digital editing and production suites housed in the Lancaster Institute for Contemporary Arts (LICA), a £10m BREEAM award-winning, sustainable building.

During your degree you will have the chance to develop a network of professional contacts through specialist modules and work placements to help prepare yourself for a successful career in the creative arts.

A career at ITV for Chris

I knew I enjoyed film, but combining and seeing film from a social and cultural point of view was fascinating. Research is an important part of making television. Learning to research thoroughly and quickly is one aspect that has helped me in my career.

Being able to analyse from an artistic and academic aspect as well as a cultural/social one has also been very important. When making TV programmes (or if you want to be a filmmaker) you not only have to approach things from an artistic stance, but also from a social and cultural point of view.

My degree has been invaluable to me, and has given me an edge over other graduates, enabling me to become one of the youngest Producer/Directors at ITV and in the freelance industry.

Chris Smithson
Former BA Film and Media & Cultural Studies student
TV Producer/Director
www.chrissmithson.co.uk
Develops your analytic skills and encourages you to understand world cinema in relation to a variety of social, cultural, political and industrial contexts. You will explore such issues as the relationship between film form and modes of production from industrial filmmaking through to low-budget art film, theories of film style and aesthetics, and the political function of cinema.

In the first term, we focus wholly on various modes of American film production (considering films such as Casablanca, Raiders of the Lost Ark, The Long Goodbye, and Slacker), and in the second term we explore some broader theoretical questions through an analysis of films from a number of different national traditions (examples may include Bicycle Thieves, All About My Mother, and Rashomon). You will gain a thorough grasp not only of the historical factors shaping national and international cinemas, but also of some key critical and theoretical concepts within the field of film studies.

Year 2

You will learn about critical theory in the arts and its application to film and related media. Among the topics explored are Form and Structure, Semiotics and Authorship, Phenomenology and Spectatorship, Sexuality and Gender, Race and Ethnicity, and Class and Society. Weekly lectures make connections across the arts, and weekly two-hour seminars/workshops allow you to work with each other on ideas and examples specifically tailored towards your discipline.

Select from modules including:
+ Perception and the Arts
+ Documentary Cultures
+ European New Wave Cinema
+ Documentary Film Practice
+ Women Film Makers
+ Introduction to Sound
+ Film and Comic Books
+ Film/Media related modules in other departments

Availability is subject to any timetabling restrictions.
Year 3

Dissertation

You will complete an independent research project on a topic of your choice. Research skills are taught via lectures/seminars and you will be supported by means of one-to-one supervision. Previous dissertation topics include: Cinematography in The Dark Knight; The absent mother in Disney films; Film Style and Authorship in the films of Shane Meadows; The cinematic figure of the vampire; Cinematic Femininity in the Alien films; and Identity in the films of Stanley Kubrick.

Optional Modules

Select from modules including:
- Creative Enterprise
- Film Theory
- Contemporary Hong Kong Cinema
- Silent Cinema
- Film/Media related modules in other departments

Optional module example: Creative Enterprise

You will learn about innovative ways creative practitioners produce and deliver their work, alongside the challenges they face. You will develop a working understanding of the key management and enterprise skills involved in delivering creative projects. Working in groups you will put your learning into practice through the delivery of your own live creative arts project. This will enable you to understand the skills, knowledge, attributes and behaviours relevant for employment in the arts and creative industries.

Lancaster Arts

The campus is brimming with culture and boasts its own theatre, art gallery and concert series; there’s also a fully equipped, student-run cinema. The Nuffield Theatre is one of the largest professional studio theatres in Europe. It hosts public performances of theatre, contemporary dance and live art from some of the best-known and respected companies from the UK and abroad.

Visiting speakers

The department hosts a number of visiting speakers each year, representing different professions, practices, and positions within film theory and production.

Facilities

You’ll have access to top of the line digital film production facilities fully equipped for creating original content for short films and experimental videos. This includes the full range of Adobe Creative Cloud suite in computer labs across campus and in our acoustic editing suites. There are large green screen and soundstage studio spaces plus well-equipped film screening spaces on campus. HD Video cameras and a range of high end DSLR cameras are available on loan along with portable lighting kits, tripods, light reflectors, mics, a gimbal and various accessories.

Student societies

There are lots of opportunities to get involved in the arts through our student societies. Students run their own cinema (Take 2 Cinema), TV station (LAI:TV) and newspaper (iScan).

Lancaster – the City

The city has two cinemas, Vue and the independent Dukes theatre and cinema. The Grand Theatre also provides a year-round calendar of drama, music and dance as well as professional touring companies. Lancaster regularly plays host to major comedy and theatrical tours, and has its own music and literature festivals.

Teaching

Lancaster University has been awarded the highest possible score in the UK government’s 2017 Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF) ratings. Our TEF Gold rating is based on high quality teaching, excellent teaching facilities and the good careers our graduates attain.

We keep our degree programmes under constant review, and regularly introduce and update modules. In any academic year, the modules offered may therefore differ from those presented here. Similarly, the structure of our degrees may change, in response to curricular developments and following consultation with students. Please check our website for the latest information www.lancaster.ac.uk/study.
Your future career

Throughout your degree we will support you in developing skills and gaining experience that will give you a head start in your chosen career. The Department of Film Studies has excellent links with organisations in the creative sectors enabling students to collaborate with individuals and organisations outside of the University.

Placements and internships

Placements and internships are great ways to gain work experience, make professional contacts and help you decide your career path. A wide range of opportunities is available, some are paid, and there are opportunities to gain experience working in schools on volunteer placements. Places are not usually guaranteed and we will help you prepare for the competitive application process.

The majority of our degrees are also available as placement year degrees that you can apply to via UCAS. With specialist support and dedicated modules, you apply for a professional, paid work placement in Year 3 and return to Lancaster to complete your degree in Year 4. We also offer summer internships and school volunteering placements.

Study abroad and vacation travel

You can apply for a study abroad year when you arrive at Lancaster. On our 3-year study abroad degrees you spend Year 2 studying at one of our international partner universities. There are also exciting possibilities for short vacation travel. These opportunities provide you with a chance to travel, experience new cultures, and make life-long friends.

Careers

Recent Film Studies graduates have gone into careers in:

+ Production roles at the BBC, ITV and MTV
+ Independent film production
+ Advertising and marketing

Throughout your degree a wealth of career guidance and support is available from the department and the University Careers Service, which has subject specific Careers Consultants. We have connections with some of the world’s top graduate recruiters and employers across every sector, and organise careers fairs, workshops, and networking opportunities throughout the year.
