Philosophy at Lancaster

Philosophy is the careful, critical, and reasoned engagement with a wide range of fundamental questions about human existence; about art, politics, justice, right and wrong, truth and knowledge, faith and reason.

Many of these questions will never have final answers. But in the words of one ancient philosopher, Socrates, "the unexamined life is not worth living." Whether we realise it or not, we all make assumptions about what is important and worthwhile; we all rely on concepts and ways of thinking. Philosophers try to make these explicit, investigate connections, and examine justifications and criticisms.

At Lancaster, we offer a diverse and flexible curriculum. We have one of the most international philosophy programmes in the UK, offering modules on Indian, Chinese, and Islamic philosophy, as well as both analytic and continental philosophy. We study foundational philosophical texts, such as the Upanishads and Plato's Republic, as well as famous thinkers, such as Confucius, the Buddha, Descartes, Kant, and Hegel. We also explore women in philosophy, covering ancient female thinkers such as Hypatia and Sulabha, as well as modern women philosophers such as Elizabeth Anderson and Iris Marion Young. We place special emphasis on how philosophy relates to practical issues – for example, in ethics, science, politics, and policy.

Because it explores abstract questions raised by many different human activities, philosophy combines well with other academic disciplines. We offer a wide range of joint degrees, as well as placement year and study abroad options.

Our degrees are designed to be highly flexible. There's a wide range of module choices, so you can focus on the areas and approaches that you find most engaging.

Your future career

You will be able to gain valuable work experience on our degrees through a range of opportunities.

Internships

We are home to the Richardson Institute, which undertakes cutting-edge peace and conflict research. The Institute provides opportunities for students to undertake internships conducting research projects for external organisations.

You can also apply for internships as part of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Internship Scheme. Roles range from marketing and comms to research and policy work at national and local SMEs and third sector organisations.

Placements

The majority of our degrees are also available as placement year degrees. With specialist support, you will apply for a professional, paid work placement to carry out in Year 3 and return to Lancaster to complete your degree in Year 4. Find out more:

Your career potential

Studying philosophy opens the door to a wide range of graduate careers. Graduate employers seek individuals with keen intellectual and critical skills, independence of mind, and clarity of communication. Studying philosophy provides all of these skills. Some of our graduates choose to continue to further study with us, taking a Masters degree or a PhD.

Here are some examples of the diverse and varied careers that are open to Philosophy graduates:

- + Media, Journalism and Public Relations
- + Teaching and education
- + Consultancy
- + Legal research
- + Logistics and project management
- + Civil and Diplomatic Services
- + Politics and Government
- + International Charities and Non-Government Organisations

Support for your career

We offer life-long careers support for our students. Our career advisers are available to support you with specialist careers guidance, as well as application and interview practice. You can take part in the Lancaster Award, which is a formal recognition of extra-curricular activity that enhances your employability, for example volunteer work, training and attending careers workshops. Your degree

BA (Hons) Philosophy

In your first year you will take three modules. The core module 'Introduction to Philosophy: Knowledge and Reality', provides an understanding of some of the key areas of Philosophy. We also strongly recommend that you take the complementary module 'Moral and Political Philosophy'.

Core Module

Introduction to Philosophy: Knowledge and Reality

Drawing on a broad range of philosophical traditions – continental, analytic, and non-Western – this module gives a comprehensive overview of approaches to knowledge and reality. It will also develop your ability to reason and think clearly about the most fundamental questions of human existence.

Recommended Module

Moral and Political Philosophy

In this introduction to practical philosophy, we aim to develop your ability to reason and think clearly about how we ought to act and organise our interaction. We consider these issues both systematically and in an applied manner: to familiarise you with various moral and political theories, but also to use these theories to think critically about real-world problems. As in the core module, we'll study European and non-European sources.

Minor Module

You will select a third module to complement your studies in Philosophy, potentially from among the following subjects:

- + Criminology
- + English Literature
- + History
- + International Relations
- + Politics
- + A language

The choices available will be subject to any timetabling restrictions or entry prerequisites.

Year 2

In your second year, you will choose from a range of optional modules, enabling you to build up your knowledge and specialise in the areas that are of most interest to you.

You can select optional Philosophy modules, such as:

- + Ethics and Politics of Knowledge
- + Indian Philosophical and Religious Thought
- + Introduction to Chinese Philosophy
- + Introduction to Feminist Philosophy
- + Metaphysics
- + Moral Philosophy
- + Modern Political Thought
- + Nineteenth Century Philosophy
- + Philosophical Questions in the Study of Politics and Economics
- + Philosophy of Mind
- + Values and Objectivity
- + Women and Philosophy in the Ancient World

If you wish, you can choose optional modules from other subject disciplines, including politics and international relations, for example:

- + Environmental Politics
- + Exploring Global Religions
- + Modern Political Thought: Equality and Community
- + War and Geopolitics

Meet Emma

As a philosophy student at Lancaster, I have greatly developed my imaginative and critical thinking skills. The opportunity to delve into Buddhist philosophy has been particularly inspiring. It has opened up new perspectives on the nature of reality that I might not have been able to explore elsewhere.

What stands out to me most, is the community within the department. I could not imagine a more friendly or passionate department to study in and I consider myself very lucky to have been a part of it for three years.

BA (Hons) Philosophy

Final Year

In your final year, you can choose from a selection of optional modules including a year-long dissertation.

You will select optional Philosophy modules, such as:

- + Buddhist Philosophy
- + Continental Philosophy
- + Darwinism & Philosophy
- + Dissertation
- + Ethics & Politics of Communication
- + Future Generations
- + Health and Disease
- + The Imagination
- + Modern Religious and Atheistic Thought
- + Philosophies of War and Conflict
- + Philosophy of Art
- + Politics of Gender in Islam

Placement Year and Study Abroad Degrees

Placement year and study abroad students spend year 3 away from campus. In your final year, you will return to Lancaster and will select optional modules such as those listed above.

Joint Degrees

For joint and triple major students, you will study core and optional modules in your second and third subjects in approximately equal weightings through all years of study.

Global Religions and Philosophy (BA Hons)

This joint degree allows you to study world religions alongside philosophy. As well choosing philosophy modules, you will explore ideas and practices from the world's major religious traditions.

Your global experience

Lancaster is a truly international university, with students and staff from over 100 different countries and partner institutions around the world. Your global experience is about living and learning with people from different cultures whether through your course, your college or your Students' Union.

Study abroad

Grow in independence and confidence while immersing yourself in a new culture and way of learning. At Lancaster, we offer 4-year study abroad degrees where you spend your third year studying at one of our international partner universities. Potential destinations currently include Australia, Canada, Hong Kong, the Netherlands, and the USA. Living in another country and studying your subject from a different perspective offers considerable benefits both in terms of your understanding of the subject and your preparation for life after university.

Vacation travel

Alternatively, there are usually shorter options in the summer vacation to destinations such as China, Germany, Ghana, Malaysia and Switzerland. These programmes include meeting local students and businesses as well as some academic study and cultural discovery.

You may also be able to attend a summer school at one of our many overseas partner universities.
