Your degree

We introduce you to the core ideas in politics and world religions and explore the relevant theories, ideas and methods that make up these subjects. You’ll develop the skills necessary to think critically about real-world problems.

Areas of study typically include

- Global Religions
- Introduction to Global Religions and Philosophy
- Core - Moral and Political Philosophy
- Introduction to Global Religions and Politics

Your future career

Whatever your career goals, we’re committed to ensuring you complete your degree with the skills and knowledge you need to succeed.

You’ll graduate with an understanding of global issues and an international perspective that is increasingly in demand from employers in our interconnected world. The skills you build in critical analysis, communication, and a critical approach to thinking are transferable and will stand you prepared to take on a number of careers. Many graduates from our department also choose to pursue a postgraduate qualification and go on to successfully complete PhDs and research-active roles in universities.

Graduate destinations

If you take a study abroad or placement year, you will apply a further year to accumulate your degree.

- Politics and government
- Civil and diplomatic services
- Consultancy
- Teaching and education
- Media, journalism and public relations

Further study

We offer a comprehensive range of postgraduate courses to complement your studies. Options range from our own or at partner institutions abroad. You’ll develop more specialist knowledge and skills, which can help you to gain qualifications that are highly regarded by employers. These courses can be self-funded or funded by scholarships and grants.
