Supporting older adults with chronic and established kidney disease to make treatment decisions

Anna’s talk will focus on her most recent collaborative project which developed a decision aid to support older adults with established kidney disease to make treatment decisions. The talk will describe:

- Patient and staff experiences of people making decisions in the context of a chronic, incurable disease
- The role of decision aids in supporting people with kidney disease to make treatment decisions
- Supporting and improving end of life planning and palliative care for people with kidney disease

Anna Winterbottom is a Chartered Psychologist with a PhD in Psychology (University of Leeds), MSc in Health Psychology (University of the West of England), and BSc in Psychology (Lancaster University).
