To proceed to your final year and ultimately qualify for a degree you MUST attempt to pass your failed modules by resitting this August.

If, after the resit, you have still failed one or more modules, your department’s examination board may condone the failure(s) for an honours degree. A maximum of 30 credits can be condoned in total on a three-year Bachelors degree, or 45 credits on a four-year Bachelors or Integrated Masters degree (but no more than 30 by the end of year three).

Modules may only be condoned where the module aggregation score is 4.0 or higher if you started your programme in 2015-16 or before. If you enrolled onto your programme in 2016-17 or later, modules may only be condoned with a mark of 7.0 or higher. No module may be condoned with an overall aggregation score of less than 4.0/7.0 (depending on year of entry) and modules can only be condoned if you have made an attempt to pass them by resitting failed elements.

To proceed to the final year of a Bachelors with honours degree you must achieve an overall aggregation score of 9.0 or above. To proceed to the final year on an Integrated Masters degree you should meet the criteria for a standard 2(i) degree at the first attempt. For further details on progression into your final year, please see the Manual of Academic Regulations and Procedures (MARP), Undergraduate Assessment Regulations.

If you have any questions you can consult the Student FAQ and, if necessary, contact the Student registry.

Resit examinations will take place in Lancaster between 19 and 23 August 2019. The latest date for the submission of resit coursework is 23 August 2019 although your department may impose an earlier date.

The resit examination timetable will be available on the Student Portal in due course.

RESIT FEES

Resit fees are charged irrespective of the nature of the reassessment and an invoice will be sent to you. The charges are £30 per Part I module and £25 per Part II module, capped at a maximum of £100 per resit period.

In exceptional circumstances it may be possible to arrange for resit examinations to happen in your home country in the British Council or equivalent. However, this needs to be organised well in advance. If you have a resit and feel that you may need to take it in your home country please contact Heather Harrington in the Student Registry by e-mail no later than the 19 July 2019. In addition to the standard resit fee, qualifying students who resit examinations at a British Council overseas will incur a non-refundable arrangement charge of £150. The British Council will also charge fees, which are payable directly to them.
